Tipping Point: The Age of Oil Sands

Monday, June 4, 7 pm
Admission Donations
Refreshments and snacks
Cameron Mall, Kellogg
120 West Cameron Avenue

Tipping Point is a 90-minute documentary from the Canadian TV series The Nature of Things, which takes viewers inside the David and Goliath struggle between a small First Nations community and global oil companies. See how activism by the northern Alberta community of Fort Chipewyan and research by freshwater scientist Dr. David Schindler uncovered toxic tar sands pollution in the Athabasca River and put the polluters in the public spotlight.

Co-Sponsored by
Wild Idaho Rising Tide & Silver Valley Community Resource Center